Dear USDA Staff:

Please make the Federal Conservation Programs Friendly for Organics. Make the EQIP more inclusive of organic agriculture practices – including implementing a new provision that assists farmers converting to organic farming systems and rewarding the conservation benefits of organic farming.

My family encourages the USDA to make the following changes to the Final Rule for EQIP:

- Acknowledge organic agriculture as a new National Priority for the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP), as mandated by Congress in the 2008 Farm Bill. The Chief of NRCS should issue a Directive to all State Conservationists reinforcing this change.
- Clarify that the $80,000 cap for Organic Conversion Support contracts applies only to organic conversion plans, and does not cover all organic operations applying to EQIP
- Also, clarify that the regular cap of $300,000 applies to organic operators who are not seeking conversion support.
- Ensure that Organic Conversion Support is available in all 50 states.
- Ensure that Organic Conversion Support applications are ranked and processed as a separate subcategory.

A personal note from our family about real homeland security – the right to grow our own food and eat healthy organic sustainably produced food for all Americans.

Presently I am being retrained in a vocational training program for sustainable agriculture. I plan to earn a living on my organic farm once it's converted. I appreciate a little more support from my government for improving the quality of food for our nation. If we got half the support industrial farmer received this country would be better off. I wonder when the surgeon general is going to start addressing these industrial Agriculture problems that are harmful to our health.
